THE PRO

Elyse Saugstad hails from Girdwood, Alaska where she found her passion for skiing big mountains in Alaska and around the World. During her career as a professional skier Elyse won the Freeride World Tour Overall in 2008 and the Freeride World Tour's "Female Line of the Year" in 2009. After a successful run at competing she turned her focus towards filming whereupon she won the coveted Powder Magazine Video Award's "Best Female Performance" in 2013 for her performance in Teton Gravity Research's Co-Lab edit. Elyse was recently named as one of ESPN's "Top 50 Women in Action Sports". Elyse co-founded and runs an avalanche awareness and snow safety clinic for women called SAFE AS with other professional female skiers. Through her unique experiences as a professional athlete Elyse had the opportunity to give a Tedx Talk in San Francisco this past year. Through all of her exploits and ski camps Elyse strives to share her enthusiasm for playing in the mountains"
